JIMPSON WEED AND SAGE
Hemp, Peppermint, Fennel, Anise,

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—What plants containing medicinal properties will grow in this state on common farm soil and under ordinary methods of cultivation? Which of these are better adapted to Wisconsin's climatic conditions than to those of other states? And which will yield compound remuneration, so that farmers and gardeners will find it profitable to undertake their cultivation? These and other questions are occupying the attention of Dr. Edward Kremers, professor of pharmaceutical chemistry
at the University of Wisconsin, and of Archibald Russell, Fond du Lac, who graduated from the pharmacy department in '08. In co-operation with the U. S. Bureau of Plant Industry, investigations are being conducted by Mr.
Russell under Dr. Kremers' direction on an acre of ground at the south end of the campus, which will be compared with the results of similar experiments made on plots on the Potomac flats at Washington, D. C., and on one or two other experimental stations in various states.
"There are very few medicinal plants grown now, and the market has developed largely on what is collected and cured by the most ignorant and unskilful class of 'poor whites' and negroes of the south. Their methods are, as might be expected, haphazard, un-outlined, and far from conducive to a high quality of material. The herbs and roots are gathered in indiscriminate bunches and dried poorly, often under conditions having a deleterious effect on the medicinal value of the product. For example, the U. S. Pharmacopoeia of 1905 adopted by congress
as the national standard placed the alkaloid contents of stramonium at thirty-five-hundredths per cent. The jobbers and manufacturers complained that it was impossible to obtain any of that grade, and the standard was lowered to twenty-five-hundredths per cent. We had no difficulty, however, in getting the higher standard the first time we tried, which shows that proper methods of cultivation and curing would make possible high standards."

The Elkhorn Fair.
One of the greatest factors in the success of the Walworth County fair lies in the fact that at all times the management has kept the fair entirely clean and free from objectionable features and wholly without graft or catch-penny games of any description. By also collecting it maintains perfect order, sobriety and freedom from gambling and petty thieving
which so often follows country fairs.

WISCONSIN. They are valuable for the oil that can be obtained from cutting the green seed capsule and encasing the exhalation, as well as for the fatty oils contained in the dry seed, the oil content being about fifty per cent.
Many people erroneously believe that the dry seeds of the poppy contain opium.
Curious Japanese Plant.
"A Japanese student procured for us specimens of the Chiso, a plant used for its oil. It flourished finely this season, and would make a pretty border plant for a garden, being somewhat like the dark red celosia,
only the leaf is more glossy."
"We certainly planted some wormwood, and one of the students is to have his thesis on an investigation of its progress and adaptability to Wisconsin farms. The ground where the celosia plants were planted was not broken until commencement week, so the beans did not get into the ground until the end of June. Nevertheless some of the plants have already attained a height of four to six feet. The boardman is doing nicely, and the fossils did not appear in garden soil, but nothing at all in the heavier farm ground."
"As the original supply of opium is almost exhausted, it is beginning to be raised commercially in the states of Oregon and Washington. We transplanted some plants, and they stood the change very well, making a growth of about two feet since they were planted in July."
"These are only some of the species being investigated on our acre. We measured the rows so that, by multiplication of the yield of a single row, the average product of an acre of that crop can be determined. I think we have reason to be quite well satisfied with the summer's experiment, under the circumstances. It was a hard summer. First there were heavy rains that pounded down the earth over the seeds; then came a drought which baked it to a crust hard for the young plants to push through; and added to these difficulties was the fact of late planting, owing to the lateness of the season."

HIGH PRAISE BY EXPO OFFICIALS
Wallace Mills' Description Of Seattle Fair, Published in Gazette Was Much Appreciated.
Officials of the Seattle exposition are much pleased with the description of their show written by Wallace Mills
and recently published in the Gazette.
The young man's father has received the following letter, under date of Sept. 10:
Dr. James Mills,
Janesville, Wis.
My dear Doctor:—At the request of Mr. J. E. Chibberg, President of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of recent date enclosing a description of the Exposition written by your son,
Mr. Wallace C. Mills.
President Chibberg read his story with a great deal of interest and he wishes me to assure you that he is greatly pleased with same.
For my own part I might add, that I am a newspaper man of ten years experience, and can truthfully say that your son's article is one of the finest bits of descriptive work I have seen in a long time. It seems to me he certainly has a rare gift of descriptive writing—something that half the newspaper men lack.
Again thanking you for submitting this article to us and assuring you that it is much appreciated by President Chibberg, as well as other officials of the Exposition, I am,
Yours very truly,
Robert W. Boyce,
Secretary to the President.

Bloodine
unlike most other medicines is a patient preparation, which does not derange the weakest stomach, but to the contrary, gives the necessary strength to the digestive organs, so that they may fulfill their full functions and bring them back to a healthy condition. Bloodine, soda and many other drugs digest the food taken into the stomach, but do not strengthen the digestive organs so that they may in the future carry on the work intended for them to do, but on the contrary, weaken the organs by doing their work for them. A bad stomach is a weak stomach, a stomach that cannot properly perform its functions, because it lacks vigor and tone, because it has not the stimulus of Pure Blood.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

DO YOU have more to do than you can possibly do?

Then you, of all people, can't afford to forget that concentration is the first principle of accomplishment.

"How DO you get so much done?" I heard a woman who accomplishes wonders asked the other day. She looked puzzled for a moment. The people who do unusual things can seldom tell just how they do it.

"I don't know," she said finally, "unless it's that I do each thing just as hard as I can and then when it's done I forget it just as hard."

While back I quoted what Everett Edward Hale said about bearing troubles—that some people have three kinds at once, those they had now, those they had had and those they expected to have.

It's much the same way about work. Some people try to do today's work, review yesterday's work, and think about tomorrow's all at once. Naturally the all-important, present task only gets about one-third the attention it ought to have.

This tendency is one that I have always had great trouble in overcoming myself. I had to own the truth of the accusation when some one said to me: "The trouble with you is that you are always thinking of what you're going to do next instead of what you're doing now."

The man who looks too much at the goal he wants to arrive at instead of the path by which he must reach that goal is apt to hinder himself by tripping and falling.

The haste that slights the present task in its anxiety to be at the next one is the haste that makes waste.

"I don't know what to do first," I heard a busy housekeeper say the other day when she was confronting a very full day's work.

And then, instead of deciding what to do first, doing it and then doing the next thing, she flew undecidedly from one thing to another, dividing her attention and dribbling her time.

Of course you've heard and seen the same process. Maybe you've said and done it yourself.

Allice Freeman Palmer, the first president of Wellesley college, probably packed as much into each day as any woman who ever lived.

Some one who knew her methods explains the phenomenon in this way:—

"She seldom hurried, never worried, admitted no regrets for the past or anxieties for the future. From these insidious dangers she was saved by habits of concentrated attention. As each separate person, topic or situation came forward for judgment, she gave it her whole mind, and then after sentence pronounced, from her whole mind it disappeared also."

By concentration, and by concentration only, can any large amount of work be accomplished.

HONOR FAMOUS LEXICOGRAPHER

Bicentenary of Dr. Samuel Johnson is Celebrated in England.

Litchfield, England, Sept. 16.—This was the first day of the bicentenary celebration of the birthday of Dr. Samuel Johnson, who was born in this town on September 18, 1709. The festivities will continue until Saturday evening, and have attracted a host of admirers of the famous old lexicographer, scholar and poet. Americans are especially numerous among those who have come to do honor to the memory of Boswell's hero.

Today was devoted to an exhibition of relics of the irascible philosopher in the venerable house on Market square where he first saw the light of day. Tomorrow the pilgrims will visit many places of interest associated with Dr. Johnson, and in the evening there will be an amateur performance of Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," which was dedicated to Johnson.

Saturday there will be a grand gathering of citizens and visitors in Market square, with addresses and songs, in front of the statues of Dr. Johnson and Boswell. A reception by the mayor and a dinner will follow.

DENTAL CHAT

It certainly is pleasant to have a man come into my office and talk like one did the other day. Said he, "Dr. Richards, I wish some more dental work."

"The work you did for me two years ago is there yet. Sound and all right."

Yet it's easy to be critical and get to be a knacker.

Really, I think it requires studied effort to get the habit of seeing something to praise in people.

But it pays you personally to see the good in people around you and it brings out the best there is in the man whom you thus encourage.

Now I want you to see the good that is in my work.

I am doing my best to put out reliable work for everybody.

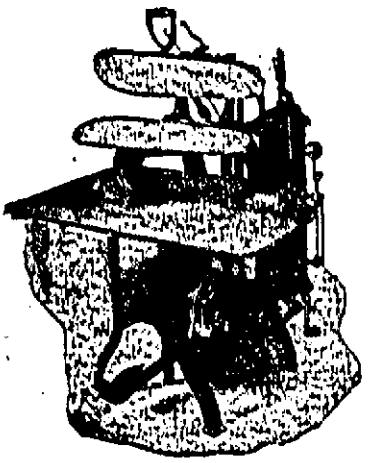

At the same time, I keep busy trying to avoid causing folks pain in all my work.

AT EIGHT LAST EVENING

Couple Will Spend Honeymoon at Northern Lake Resorts—At Home
in Eau Claire After Nov. 1.

Garlanded and canopied with festoons of asparagus fern and sprays of Southern smilax which overran and concealed all barriers, throwing into relief great banks of Japanese, eleventh and clusters of white aster, the Shumway home at 402 Court street last evening gave subdued but genial welcome to a rhapsody of new couples in the world-old and ever new depositions. On the veranda and elsewhere large waves of golden red and maroon struck the color note in the scheme of yellow and white. A path of carpets led to the kneeling steel and power of greens in the east end of the commodious living room. There was a grape-crowned punch-bowl in the hallway and in the perfection of appointments the whole scene was one to be remembered by each and every member of the brilliant company that gathered there.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Shumway, the parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Mason of Eau Claire, parents of the groom, received the guests shortly before eight o'clock. At that hour there was an end to the melodies which the Knott & Hatch orchestra had been playing at the head of the stairway and Perry and Doane McKinney began. In the reception room, a piano and violin duet of the Lehmann wedding march. Dr. Everett Lee Mason of Eau Claire, Andrew Shumway, his best man, and the parents of the bride took their places near the white kneeling stool. The Misses Harriet Bostwick and Lucetta Whitton stretched the ribbon. Rev. John McKinney moved to his place at the improvised altar rail, and the march of the bridal party began.

Miss Mabel Shumway, sister of the bride and maid of honor, wore a gown of embroidered fillet lace over yellow muslin and carried yellow roses. Miss Agnes Eloise Shumway, the bride, was attired in a gown of princess lace over white satin and her veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilacs of the valley.

Following the ceremony and congratulations, an elaborate supper was served buffet style in the dining room. The Mesdames Arthur P. Burdham, Mary Vance, Stanley R. Smith, and George Mason of Chicago presiding at the beautifully decorated center-table. Miss Harriet Bostwick cut the ring in the bride's cake and Miss Mabel Shumway caught the bride's bouquet. Little souvenir boxes of wedding cake were presented to all the guests.

The bride's traveling costume was of tan pongee. And a shower of confetti Dr. and Mrs. Mason took their departure for Madison shortly before eleven o'clock. They will spend their honeymoon at Spider Lake and other neighboring resorts in the northern woods and will be at home after November the first at an attractive residence which the groom has purchased in Eau Claire. A photograph of the home had a place among the many beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass, and pictures which were displayed in an upper room.

In addition to those who have been mentioned the following out-of-town guests were present at the wedding: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Newton of Johnston, Wis.; William G. Wheeler and Miss Mabel Jackson of Milwaukee; Miss Helen Nash of Chicago; and Miss Leonore Melnhart of Burlington, Wis.

LONG, HARD RUN TO FIRE LAST EVENING

Fire Department Called to Put Out
Blaze at Harry McCarthy Home

at Logan Street.

The fire department made a long, hard run to the third ward last evening in response to an alarm turned in from box 213 at the corner of Carlington street and South Garfield avenue. A gasoline stove at the home of Harry McCarthy, 714 Logan street, catching fire, was the cause of the blaze, which was put out before the wagons arrived. The fire tenants were driven down South Main street, which, on account of the mud holes, and rough condition of the street, made hauling the wagons a very hard job for the horses. A few of the firemen are also endangered when driving down the thoroughfare at full speed with the weighty apparatus.

MISS JANET FORD
DIED LAST NIGHT

Little Hope for Her Recovery Had Been Entertained Since Blood Clot Developed on the Brain.

Miss Janet Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ford, died last evening at the Madison sanitarium where she has been receiving treatment during the past fortnight. There had been but slight hope for her since a blood clot developed on the brain. The terrible affliction which overtook her and this sudden ending of her life constitute another of the saddest long list of Jansville tragedies. The deceased was born January 29, 1877, and died at her home in this city. Besides her parents, a brother, Herbert A. Ford, survives her. They have the deepest sympathy of the entire community. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from H. A. Ford's residence at 22 Oakland avenue and will be private. Friends are requested to send no flowers.

THREE PLAIN DRUNKS WERE TREATED VERY LENIENTLY

Strangers Picked Up by the Police
All Escaped Serving Time in the County Jail.

William Parker, Fred A. Wood and Emil Scott were the names of three strangers who were brought up in municipal court this morning charged with being drunk. Parker, who hails from Cleveland, Ohio, stated that he had accumulated his land while looking for a lodging place. He was allowed to go upon promising to take the first train out of town. Fred A. Wood, a truck farmer from Broadhead, while on the train last night, called a fellow passenger by the name of Wells, a vile name, which resulted disastrously. Special Officer John Dalton escorted him to the station and this morning his case was adjourned a week to let him pay a fine of aggregating $3.10. Emil Scott of Rockford was tacking apparently against heavy seas in order to reach the safe haven of the 9:15 interurban when picked up last night. He promised to remit his assessment of $2.10 by Tuesday and left for the dry county.

AT JUNCTION LAST NIGHT

Party of Fifty Pilgrims Were Stalled for Over an Hour and Had to Return on a Freight.

About fifty Jansville people who were returning from the state fair at Milwaukee, were left at Milton Junction last evening with no prospects of a train to carry them home. They finally secured passage, however, on the southbound freight. A passenger coach was attached to this, and after an hour's wait they finally started for Jansville arriving here at midnight. Among the party who made the trip on the freight were William Dealey, William Hughes, A. C. Brown, P. Dutcher, W. T. Flaherty, E. Waddell, F. Elstenberger, M. Seidman, W. Ehringer, H. Walter, D. P. Spore, F. J. Ring, C. S. Nagle, W. N. Lowry, J. Sheldon, H. Russell, and S. Flyer.

Program Tomorrow Night.

Veterans of the Third Wisconsin Volunteer Regiment, which served throughout the entire Civil War, are gathering in the city for their nineteenth annual reunion, which is being held here today and tomorrow. The veterans and their wives have been straggling into the city on the trains at various hours during the day, and though this afternoon there were but twenty-one who had registered at the headquarters in the post hall of the G. A. R., it was expected that by nightfall the full attendance of thirty or forty would be present. There were no regular meetings this morning, the visitors getting together in little groups and conversing and chatting together, but late this afternoon a meeting was held, at which matters of routine and business were discussed and letters from absent comrades were read. H. W. Osborn, of Cleveland, O., president of the Third Wisconsin Veteran Volunteer Infantry association, which is holding the reunion, is the man who has come from farthest to attend the gathering. Gen. Stevenson, of Burlington, who was colonel of the regiment at the end of the war, was expected later in the day, as no word having been received from him that he would not come. The other association officers, with the exception of the treasurer, are also here.

Tonight the old soldiers will hold a campfire, or what is known as the Regimental Love-feast, at the G. A. R. hall. Only members of the regiment will be present at this entertainment. Tomorrow night, at East Side Old Fellows' hall, there will be a public meeting to which the public is cordially invited. A splendid program consisting of excellent numbers by members of the regiment and others will be given. Included among the speakers tomorrow evening will be Mrs. J. B. Day and Prof. H. C. Buell. Tomorrow being Antislavery Day, the anniversary of the great battle which was fought in 1862, one of the sessions of the reunion or a part of the program at the evening entertainment will be given over to a celebration of the event. This day is always selected by the regiment for one of the dates of their reunions.

The names on the registry list at the hall at two o'clock this afternoon were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Elford, Kenosha; H. W. Bucklin, Jansville; C. O. Kimberley, city; Lawrence Post, Mt. Horeb, Wis.; E. Endahl, Evansville; Gullford Poesche, Evansville; J. F. Carle, Jansville; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Crave, of Heloit; W. B. Smith, Heloit; William H. Thurston, Argyle, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Longfield, Madison; H. W. Osborn, president of the association, Cleveland; J. W. Hinkley, Great Bay; D. Thompson, Oconomowoc; George D. Owen, vice-president, and wife, of Waupun; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Black, Shiope.

Forty Years Ago

Janesville Daily Gazette, September 16, 1869.—Runaway.—The day horse of Whiskey got frisky this morning while he was bringing down a load of peaches from the depot. In fact the peaches were so tempting that he was tempted to a trial of speed, and he consequently ran down West Milwaukee street as far as River, onto which he turned, nowing a portion of the day load of peaches at the corner, and up River street he went, Mr. H. sticking to him tenaciously and finally bringing him up near the railroad bridge. Nobody hurt.

Completion of the Pavement.—The last blocks of the Nicholson pavement on West Milwaukee street were laid this afternoon and this thoroughfare is now open to public travel. The work has been delayed beyond the patience of even the most patient, and we feel like joining our citizens in general protest against another such infliction of inactivity in progress of a public work. However, now that the job is completed we have a good road bed, and while doubtless enjoy it the same as if the street had not been blockaded for six weeks or more, we consider the men of back streets and alleys, and cutting off from necessity.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so gives health and strength to the whole body.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

PROSPEROUS ERA COMING SAYS RAILROAD PRESIDENT

Marvin Hughitt, Head of the Northwestern, Sees Era of Great Industrial Activity.

New York, Sept. 16.—Marvin Hughitt, president of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company, who came to New York to pay his last tribute to Edward H. Harriman, like his dead friend, is a great optimist. He predicts great prosperity for the country as did Mr. Harriman, when he returned from Europe.

"The railroad world, and naturally my observations refer more particularly to the Chicago & Northwestern, is entering a period of activity which is merely a reflection of what is now taking place in the commercial, industrial and agricultural spheres of activity," Mr. Hughitt said. "As far as our lines are concerned, we continue to adhere to a policy that means that improvements must be kept up, regardless of what may transpire."

"Relative to the service as a whole, I find that the introduction of the telephone as a means of dispatching has proved of immense value. We are continually increasing in this direction, and as we may be considered pioneers in this matter we shall also take advantage of whatever new features of telephoning that may come up."

"Speaking of crops, the wheat and corn harvests are little short of remarkable this year. We are, besides, in excellent condition to handle them. Our lines penetrate the greatest wheat and corn belts of the country and the farmer is more and more proving the importance of the nation."

"The west is wonderful in its responsiveness to the energies of man. The element which has settled in those regions makes push and perseverance its prime movers. In every way the country can look to that section for encouragement and strength."

Packers Victims of British Thrift. London, Sept. 16.—Taking advantage of the prevailing shortage in and the enhanced prices for canned meats, the thrifty British war office is reported to have reaped a handsome profit by selling back to certain Chicago houses large stocks of canned meats ordered before the prices advanced.

Causes Arrest of Hopkins. Appleton, Wis., Sept. 16.—Wallace H. Hopkins of the former Wallace H. Hopkins Company is under arrest in this city charged by Mayor Julius Martens of Kaukauna, Wis., with non-delivery of 300 shares of mining stock which were paid for by the complainant. The stock is valued at $2,100.

PLAYED WHIST FOR LIVE PIG. Iowa Methodists Will Probe a Woman's Card Game.

Webster City, Ia., Sept. 16.—Whether Mrs. Minnie Douglas of Adel played whist for a live pig and other prizes offered by the club to the members making the highest score is a question that will come up at the big annual Des Moines conference of the Methodist Episcopal church held in Ames this week.

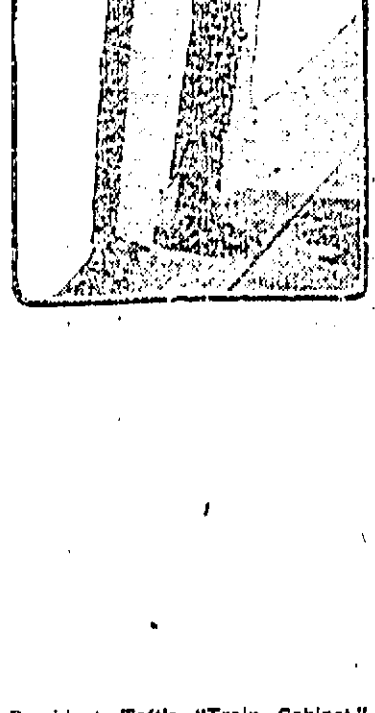

The case has become a celebrated one. Mrs. Douglas was ousted from the Methodist church at Adel because she played cards for prizes. Mrs. Douglas declares she will bring the matter to the attention of the church conference at Ames.

From left to right, Wendell W. Mischler, assistant secretary to President Taft and general manager of the "White House on wheels," John Hayes Hammond, president League of Republican Clubs and only companion of the president on the trip, Dr. J. J. Richardson, President Taft's special physician on the trip, Arthur Brooks, personal messenger to the president, C. W. Wagner, Taft's assistant secretary.

President Taft is making the longest journey ever undertaken by a chief executive with the fewest companions that have ever accompanied a president on such a journey. However, his personal traveling staff has been selected with discrimination and with a view to lightening the burdens of the distinguished traveler to as great an extent as possible. Wendell W. Mischler, Assistant Secretary to the president is, in effect, the business manager of the "White House on wheels." He is an expert stenographer who has been in the service of Taft since he was Secretary of War and is especially capable in the dictation of the speeches. The president prepares in advance, Arthur Brooks, the faithful colored man who has been Taft's personal messenger for years, accompanies the President partly as a general utility man upon whom the President can always depend. As a traveling companion, President Taft has one chosen chum in the person of John Hayes Hammond, the famous mining engineer who is now the President of the League of Republican Clubs and whom this tour gives an opportunity to get in touch with political conditions in all sections of the country.

Total Depravity. "I suppose you have a wife and eight children," sneered the heartless man. "Great Scott, no!" answered Plodding Pete. "If I had, don't you suppose I'd be home makin' 'em work?"

Japanese Trade Decreases. In 1908 purchases of Japanese porcelain, lacquers and bronzes by England, France, Germany and the United States decreased by $1,000,000. Exports to China fell off $12,500,000 generally, owing to the reduced value of silver and the Tatsu Maru boycott. All exports decreased except mats, floor matting and refined sugar.

Uncle Ezra Says:

"When you want to go back to your old home town it's a good deal better to be met with a brass band than with a piece of maula rope."

Heart Trouble from Childhood. "I suffered with my heart from childhood; could not sleep on left side. Eleven bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy removed all these troubles, and brought complete recovery." MRS. H. C. CRUSE, San Francisco, Calif.

The life of the body is the blood. It runs on and on, carrying nourishment and gathering up impurities as long as life lasts—the heart makes it go. When the heart is weak it cannot do this, and dizzy spells, palpitation, short breath, indicate that it is doing its work imperfectly.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, and restores normal action to the heart.

The first bottle will benefit! If not, your druggist will return your money.

"What happened?" inquired Margaret, still not much interested.

"He arrived in an automobile," answered Mrs. Rushmore, and she paused.

"What old Griggs calls a sudden-death-car," Mr. Van Torp put in.

"What a shocking name for it!" cried Mrs. Rushmore. "And you are always in them, my dear child!" She looked at Margaret. "A sudden-death-car! It kills you!"

"Griggs says that all his friends either kill or get killed in them," explained the American.

"My throat-doeser says motoring is very bad for the voice, so I've given it up," Margaret said.

"Really? Thank goodness your profession has been of some use to you at last, my dear!"

Margaret laughed.

"Tell us about the Russian count," she said. "Has he found lodgings, or is he going to sleep in his motor?"

"My dear, he's the most original man you ever heard of! First, he wanted to buy the hotel and turn it all out, and offered any price for it, but the director said it was owned by a company in Munich. Then he sent his secretary about trying to buy a house, while he dined, but that didn't succeed either. He must be very wealthy or else quite mad."

"Mad, I should say," observed Mr. Van Torp, slowly peeling a peach. "Did you happen to catch his name, Mrs. Rushmore?"

"Oh, yes! We heard nothing else all the afternoon. His name is Krallinsky—Count Krallinsky."

Mr. Van Torp continued to peel his peach scientifically and economically, though he was aware that Margaret was looking at him with sudden curiosity.

"Krallinsky," he said slowly, keeping his eyes on the silver blade, the knife as he finished what he was doing. "It's not an uncommon name, I believe. I've heard it before. Sounds Polish, doesn't it?"

He looked up suddenly and showed Margaret the peeled peach on his fork. He smiled as he met her eyes, and she nodded so slightly that Mrs. Rushmore did not notice the movement.

"Did you ever see that done better?" he asked with an air of triumph.

"Mopping!" Margaret answered. "You're a dandy, dad!"

"My dear child, what terrible slang!"

"I'm sorry," said Margaret. "I'm catching all sorts of American expressions from Mr. Van Torp, and when they get mixed up with my English ones the result isabel, I suppose!"

"I've not heard Mr. Van Torp use any slang expressions yet, my dear," said Mrs. Rushmore, almost severely.

"You will," Margaret retorted with a laugh. "What because of Count Krallinsky? I didn't mean to spoil your story."

"My dear, he's got the pastor to give up his house, by offering him a hundred pounds for the poor here."

Van Torp left them soon after supper, and gave himself up to Stomp, pondering over what he had accomplished in two days, and also about another question which had lately presented itself. When he was ready to send his valet to bed he sat down at his table and wrote a telegram:

"If you can find Barak, please explain that I was mistaken. Krallinsky is not in New York, but here in Bayreuth for some days, lodging at the pastor's house."

This message was addressed to Logothetis at his lodgings in London, and Van Torp signed it and gave it to Stomp to be sent at once. Logothetis never went to bed before two o'clock, as he knew, and might very possibly get the telegram the same night.

When his man was gone, Van Torp drew his chair to the open window and sat up a long time thinking about what he had just done; for though he held that all was fair in such a contest, he did not mean to do anything which he himself thought "low down."

One proof of this odd sort of integrity was that the telegram itself was a fair warning of his presence in Bayreuth, where Logothetis knew that Margaret was still stopping.

As for the rest, he was quite convinced that it was Krallinsky himself, the ruby merchant, who had suddenly appeared at Bayreuth, and that this man was no other than the youth he had met long ago as a cowboy in the west, who used to whistle "Paralel" with his companion in exile, and who, having grown rich, had lost no time in coming to Europe for the very purpose of hearing the music he had always loved so well. And that girl, man had robbed the poor Tartar girl, Mr. Van Torp had no manner of doubt; and he believed that he had probably promised her marriage and abandoned her; and if this were true, to help her to find Krallinsky was in itself a good action.

CHAPTER VII.

When Van Torp and Logothetis left Mr. Pinney's shop, the old jeweler meant to have a good look at the ruby the Greek had brought him, and was going to weigh it, not merely as a matter of business, for he weighed every stone that passed through his hands from crown diamonds to sparls, but with genuine curiosity, because in a long experience he had not seen very many rubies of such a size, which were also of such fine quality, and he wondered where this one had been found.

Just then, however, two well-dressed young men entered the shop and came up to him. He had never seen either of them before, but their looks inspired him with confidence; and when they spoke, their tone was that of English gentlemen, which all other Englishmen find it practically impossible to imitate, and which had been extremely familiar to Mr. Pinney from his youth. Though he was the great jeweler himself, the wealthy descendant of five of his name in succession, and much better off than half his customers, he was alone in his shop that morning. The truth was that his only son, the sixth Pinney and the apple of his eye, had just been married and was gone abroad for a honeymoon trip, and the head shopman, who was Scotch, was having his month's holiday at Ayshire, and the second man had been sent for, to clean and restring the duchess of Barchester's pearls at her grace's house in Calogian Gardens, as was always done after the season, and a couple of skilled workmen for whom Mr. Pinney found occupation, all the year round were in the workshop at their tables; wherefore, out of four responsible and worthy men who usually were about, only the great Mr. Pinney himself was at his post.

One of the two well-dressed customers asked to see some pins, and the other gave him the advice. The first brought a pin with a small sapphire set in sparks, for ten guineas, and gave only ten pounds for it because he paid cash. Mr. Pinney put the pin into his little morocco case, wrapped it up neatly and handed it to the purchaser. The latter and his friend said good-morning in a civil and laudably manner, sauntered out, took a hansom a few steps farther down the street, and drove away.

The little paper twist containing Logothetis's ruby was still exactly where Mr. Pinney had placed it on the counter, and he was going to examine the stone and weigh it at last, when two more customers entered the shop, evidently foreigners, and moreover of a sort unfamiliar to the good jeweler, and especially suspicious.

The two were Barak and her interpreter and servant, whom Logothetis had called a Turk, and who was really a Turkish subject and a Mohammedan, though as to race, he was a half-breed Greek and Galatinian. Now, deductions are generally honest, truthful, and trustworthy, and the low-class Greek of Constantinople is usually extremely sharp. If he is nothing more definitely reprehensible; and Barak's man was a cross between the two, as I have said, and had been brought up as a Muslim in a rich Turkish family, and recommended to Barak by the Persian merchant in whose house she had lived. He had been originally baptized a Christian under the name of Spiro, and had been subsequently renamed Salim when he was made a real Moslem at 12 years old, so he used whichever name suited the circumstances in which he was placed. At present he was Spiro.

The interpreter spoke broken but intelligible English. "He called Barak his master and explained that the latter wished to see some rubies, if Mr. Pinney had any, cut or uncut. The young gentleman, he said, did not speak English, but was a good judge of stones."

For one moment the jeweler forgot the little paper twist as he turned towards his safe, pulling out his keys at the same time. To reach the safe he had to walk the whole length of the shop, behind the counter, and before he had gone half way he remembered the stone, turned, came back and slipped it into his waistcoat pocket. Then he went and got the little jaspered strong-box with a patent lock, in which he kept loose stones, some wrapped up in little pieces of paper, and some in pill boxes. He brought it to his customers, and opened it before them.

They stayed a long time, and Spiro asked many questions for Barak, chiefly relating to the sliding scale of prices which is regulated by the weight of the stones where their quality is equally good, and Barak made notes of some sort in a little English memorandum book, as if she had done it all her life; but Mr. Pinney could not see what she wrote. He was careful, and watched the stones when she took them in her fingers and held them up against the light, or laid them on a sheet of white paper to look at them critically.

TAFT-CANNON VIEWS DIFFER

President and Speaker at Odds on Currency Reform Question.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Official Washington is very much impressed with the radically different views on the subject of currency legislation set forth in speeches delivered by President Taft and Speaker Cannon.

The president declared that the present banking and monetary system was a patched up affair, and satisfied nobody, and he discussed in a friendly way the central bank of issue plan. The speaker, addressing the American Bankers' association, criticized the suggestion of a central bank of issue, declaring that the present currency system is best suited to the country's needs.

The belief prevails here that when Speaker Cannon arrives in Washington next winter he will find himself at odds with the administration over the subject of currency reform.

Army Officer Is Sentenced.

San Francisco, Sept. 16.—Eugene Pearson, former chief clerk in the depot quartermaster's office of the United States army, in this city, was sentenced to one year and one day in the San Quentin prison for embezzling $1,140 from the government.

MANSION AT ALBANY

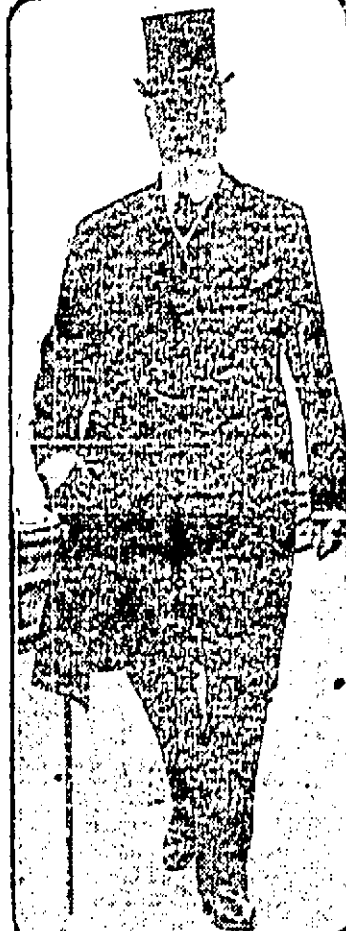

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The New York state executive mansion at Albany which will be the center of the social activities in connection with the Hudson-Fulton centenary is one of the handsomest gubernatorial residences possessed by any state in the union. A somewhat old-fashioned but set in spacious grounds in the older nevertheless imposing mansion it is, part of the city, and its location on top of a knoll affords views of a considerable portion of Albany. Entering this vine-clad mansion via an impressive porte cochere the visitor finds himself in a spacious hall. On the left is the governor's study and library and opening from this is what was formerly the conservatory, but has been converted during the Hughes regime into a very attractive billiard room. On the opposite side of the main hall is a reception hall, an immense drawing room and ball room. In the rear is the dining room, which is of ample proportions to enable Governor and Mrs. Hughes to entertain from 20 to 40 guests at dinner.

Lace In "The Governor's Legs."
New York, Sept. 16.—Lace handkerchiefs and embroidery valued at $700 were found sewed inside coat sleeves and trouser legs in the three trunks of Stephen Erhard of Chicago by customs inspectors at the New York customs house, according to the inspectors' testimony, when Erhard was arraigned before a United States commissioner in Jersey City.

U. S. Ships Honor Mexicans.
Norfolk, Va., Sept. 16.—As a tribute to the Mexican government and a compliment to the officers of the Mexican gunboat, Morelos, which arrived in Hampton Roads yesterday, every ship in the Atlantic fleet at sunrise today raised the Mexican flag and fired a national salute.
